Winter Term: Hands-On Museum Work at the Oberlin Heritage Center

Find out what the Oberlin Heritage Center's Oberlin College student interns learned from their winter term museum experiences by reading their blogs on the Heritage Center's website. Our great team of college student interns who were on-site for the month of January helped the OHC staff take big strides in tackling a broad span of research and collections care projects.

Western Reserve Heritage Area Study

A feasibility study for designating the Western Reserve as a National Heritage Area has been requested by the U.S. Congress and is currently under the coordination of the National Park Service. The feasibility study includes an evaluation of the region’s unique historical, natural, recreational and cultural resources to determine their national significance, as well as an examination of local support and ability to coordinate a national heritage area should a designation be approved by Congress. The study area for the Western Reserve Heritage Area includes all or portions of present-day counties of Trumbull, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geauga, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa and Ashland. Town Hall Gatherings are being held to present information about national heritage areas and the feasibility study, as well as to hear comments from those within the study area. “The Town Hall Gatherings are the most important components of the feasibility study,” said Rory Robinson, Study Team Leader with the National Park Service. “We look forward to listening to the citizens of the Western Reserve and learning about their stories, resources, and cultural traditions.” The Gatherings are scheduled throughout the Western Reserve through February 25. These informal meetings will be held 4-8 p.m. and include presentations by the National Park Service at 4:15 p.m. and 6:15 p.m. National Park Service staff and members of a Western Reserve Heritage Feasibility Steering Committee will be on-hand to answer questions. These gatherings will provide opportunities for the public to provide input. Upcoming meetings include:

February 11: Sandusky City Services Center, 1024 Cement Avenue, Sandusky, OH

February 16: Reed Memorial Library, Jenkins Room, 167 East Main Street, Ravenna, OH

February 17: Kent State Trumbull Campus, Lecture Hall A, 4314 Mahoning Avenue NW (SR 45), Warren, OH

February 25: Medina County District Library, Room A, 210 South Broadway, Medina, OH 44256

There are currently 49 national heritage areas in the United States, including two within the State of Ohio: Ohio & Erie Canalway National Heritage Area in northeast Ohio and the National Aviation Heritage Area in southwest Ohio. Each national heritage area has a local organization responsible for working with local communities in setting and implementing activities and goals. To learn more about the Western Reserve Heritage Area Feasibility Study, visit <http://westernreserve.ning.com>, or call Rory Robinson with the National Park Service at (330) 657-2951.

Good Reading for Winter Evenings
