Upcoming Events

Oberlin-Wellington Rescue Documentary World Premiere!

Sunday, April 23 at The Apollo at 4:00 p.m.

Don't miss the upcoming film premiere of “A Higher Law: The Oberlin-Wellington Rescue” on Sunday, April 23 at 4:00 p.m. at Oberlin’s Apollo Theatre. No tickets are required to attend this free showing and all are welcome. Doors will open at 3:30 p.m. and the film runs just under 90 minutes. Filmmakers Scott Spears and Christina Paolucci will be present for a Q&A session after the showing.

The documentary brings to life the events surrounding John Price’s rescue from slave catchers by community members from Oberlin and Wellington in 1858. The film follows Price’s journey from Kentucky to Oberlin, increasing tensions between pro-slavery and anti-slavery factions in the years leading up to the Civil War, Price’s kidnapping and liberation, Oberlin’s connection to the raid on Harpers Ferry shortly after, and reflections on post-Civil War inequities.

This film is made possible, in part, by: Ohio Humanities, a state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Any views, findings, conclusions or recommendations expressed in this film do not necessarily represent those of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

News From OHC

Thanks To Our Strategic Planning Participants!

Thank you to all who participated in our in-person strategic planning public forums and our online survey.

We appreciate your thoughtful suggestions and comments. We will be reviewing the feedback over the next few months and working toward releasing a plan early this fall.
OHC Needs Volunteers!
OHC needs volunteers for our greeting table at the First Church in Oberlin UCC on Saturday, May 6, 10:00 am - 3:00 pm for Spring Festival. If you are interested in representing OHC at this event please contact tourinfo@oberlinheritage.org

History of POC teachers in Oberlin City Schools Project
Oberlin College student and OHC intern Lillian Gibson has been working for over a year developing a spreadsheet of educators and staff members of color who have worked in the Oberlin City Schools. This project was started as part of an ongoing effort to document the history of how race and racism impacted local education over the decades, including neighborhood schools, educational disparities, Black history curriculum (or lack thereof), and staff diversity. There is no comprehensive source documenting staff members of color so we’re hoping community members can help fill in information. If you are interested in taking a look at her draft spreadsheet and contributing additional info or names, please email OHC director Liz Schultz at director@oberlinheritage.org.

Museum & Members Update

Thank you to The Nord Family Foundation for a grant of $20,000 to help reroof Jewett House’s barn and repaint the iron fence around the Monroe House. Maintenance and improvement projects like these are vital to keep OHC in good shape for future generations to enjoy.

In other news, some of you may have received notices from Amazon Smile that giving to OHC is no longer possible. Please know this entire program has been retired by Amazon.

We would like to thank our newest members Wilson Hughes, Brigette Johnson, and Tom Karro-Gassner.

Our deep condolences go out to the families of Jiann I. Lin and Patricia Bailey Stetson, as well as our gratitude for their naming the Oberlin Heritage Center as a possible place to send memorial gifts. Both were members for over twenty years. OHC often designates memorial gifts toward an endowment so that the impact of the contributions is felt for generations to come.

We also send our condolences to the families of Ralph Hayes, who was very active in the Pittsfield Township Historical Society, and Marcia Heckert, who was an active member of OHC and once won contest to name OHC’s stag statue, which she dubbed “Straus”.
