one-over-one window has a wood pediment above it, and another, to the far left, also has wood shutters. The second story has one-over-one windows to the right, with shutters and a wood pediment above. To the left, at the gabled section of the facade, a pair of one-over-one windows has a large pediment above and shutters. The gable has decorative knee braces, wood overlays, and patterned shingles. Also, in the gable, is decorative bracing. The east elevation has a small porch near the center, whose support has chamfered corners. Simple balusters, and spindlework balusters are located along the porch, which appears to be collapsing. The door at the porch has a wood pediment above, as do the one-over-one windows to the left and right of the door in both stories. A one-story portion extends left of the porch, which also has a one-over-one window with a wood pediment above. The west elevation features an end-facing gabled section near the center, which has two one-over-one windows with wood pediments above at the first story. The second story has a pair of one-over-one windows with one large, wood pediment above and shutters. The gable is similar to that of the front gable, in its Eastlake styling. To the right, a one-story addition has a cement block foundation. A door is located near the center, with wood steps leading up and lattice below. A one-over-one window with a wood pediment is located left of the door, and a set of three casement windows is located to the right.
