42. Further Description of Important Interior and Exterior Features (Continued on Reverse if Necessary)
   This is a good example of a 1950s Colonial Revival home in Oberlin. The main, central portion of the front facade contains running bond brick in the first story and aluminum siding in the first story of the wings and the second story. The entry is located slightly left of center, and is recessed below the second story with square supports and decorative iron detail between the supports and the house. A large picture window is located to the continued...
43. History and Significance (Continue on Reverse if necessary)
   According to the property card, this house was built in 1954 for Karl H. & Mary Edith Augenbaugh, a treasurer at Oberlin College (Alumni Register). The Oberlin City Directory lists the Augenbaugh family living here into the 1970s. Other residents of this house include Kathy and Elliot Jolesch and Greg Supers (Reeves).
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings (See #52)
   This house is in very good condition, and is surrounded by other homes that are also in decent condition in a quiet neighborhood.

   right of door, which is flanked by narrow windows with ten lights in each. All of the windows in this house have shutters and wood surrounds; those in the brick portion have stone sills. An attached garage is located on the east elevation, but faces the street, with a door located left of the garage door. The garage door has four windows, and the door next to it has two windows in the upper half. An addition extends behind the garage, and is indicated by foundation of a different material. At the west elevation, the second story addition, which sits on stilts, is visible. This addition is covered in siding, like the rest of the house. Skylights are located on the roof, and are visible at the front facade.
