42. Further Description of Important Interior and Exterior Features (Continued on Reverse if Necessary)
The original c. 1890 house that once stood on this property was presumably demolished between 1904-1911 to build this Craftsman house that features a full porch at the front elevation (Sanborn). The porch has a hipped roof and double supports, with geometric beams in the upper portion that create an "I" design, giving the home its Craftsman appearance. The supports sit on shingled bases with simple balusters. Two cement steps at street level, and continued...
43. History and Significance (Continue on Reverse if necessary)
This house replaced an original 1890 structure sometime between 1904-11 (Sanborn). Hannah & John Williams moved to the original structure c. 1890 (City Directory). Other occupants of the original house include their daughters Sarah & Hattie, Mrs. A.E. Derby & her son, Roy, Jennie & Ella Hull, Jane Rounds & her son William, Rev. John & Emma Wilson & their sons William & Charles (City Directory). In 1908, which may be when the current structure was built, dentist John E & Clara Barnard lived here continued...
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings (See #52)
A detached, one-car garage with a porch/overhang on its west elevation is located behind the house. The house, and the surrounding homes, is in good condition.

three more wood steps lead up to the porch and central entry. The six-panel door is flanked by three sidelights, above a wood panel. Vertical beams run along both sides of the entry, on top of horizontal clapboard siding in the first story. The second story features square shingles, which have two rows of shingles that follow the angle of the roofline. Left of the front door is a large twelve-over-one window. A ribbon of three nine-over-one windows is located above the porch. At the side elevations, exposed rafters are visible below the roof’s eaves. The west elevation has a cross gable that interrupts the roof and has a ribbon of three windows. A stringcourse runs between the first and second stories. The first story has a projecting bay with a shed roof and a large window sits to its right. The east elevation has a second story gable with nine-over-one windows. The first story has a ribbon of four nine-over-one windows, with a smaller, one-over-one window to the left, and yet another large, twelve-over-one window further to the left.
