A driveway on the north side of the house leads to a garage in the back, which was built in 1975.

Built sometime between 1910 and 1916, this home’s earliest known residents were Burton and Mrs. W.C. Porter. By 1927 Eva Porter, presumably a relative, was living in the house, and she was there until 1936. From 1937 to 1942, Merle Hamner, a shop worker, and his wife Minnie lived there. Rev. Howard Jones, the priest of Christ Episcopal Church, the longest owner, lived in the house in the 1950s. In the early 1960s, Richard Kimmey and his wife Gayle lived here: he was a research engineer for NASA.

A porch spans the front of the house, with a roof supported by round Doric columns and a sandstone railing. The front door to the house is on the right side of the porch, and on the left is a large bay window. On the top story, a gable-roofed wall dormer with cornice returns, fishscale wood shingles, and a window faces the road. There is a similar dormer on the south side of the house. Also on the south side is a bay window that interrupts the stringcourse around the house. On the back of the house is a one story wing with a gable roof. The north side of the house has a door into the basement. The stringcourse is interrupted by a plain window on this side.
