One gable end faces the street, and a cross-gable projects from the north side. The porch covers the corner between the gables and extends across the side of the cross-gable. There is one front door on the side of the cross-gable and one on the side of the main gable. All doors and windows have a shaped wooden lintel, except for the pair of lancet windows on the second floor of the gable end facing the street. The north side of the house has a small shed-roofed projection with a side door and stairway to the second floor. The chimney has a decorated stone cap with a weathervane on top, and the south side of the long gable has a gabled wall dormer with a single lancet window.

Frank Stone was the proprietor of an Omnibus line, and he lived here from 1877 until his death in 1881 (City Directories, Holsworth). His wife, Huldah J., worked as a dressmaker and lived in the house until at least 1891. The Stones had four sons, and Judson, the oldest, lived at 322 S. Professor through 1894, working as a U.S. Express Agent. He lived here with his wife, Ida E. (Directories). Mrs. Helen A. Rockwood, whose husband had died a few years before, lived here from 1896-1897, sharing the house with a conductor named William Hoyt (Directories). Burton and Jennie Gunn lived here in 1899 with violin repairer A. R. Brothers (Directories). Years before, lived here from 1896-1897, sharing the house with a conductor named William Hoyt (Directories).

This building is located in a residential neighborhood. A driveway runs along the south side of the building.
