This house is an example of a Gable Front Bungalow in Oberlin. At the left side of the first story, three one-over-one windows are shaded by a shed roof, which is supported with knee braces. The recessed porch is located to the right and has Stick style supports. The porch is partially screened in, and lattice runs below it. The door is located off center and has a window in the upper half, with a screen door to the right. Wood steps and an iron...

This home’s first resident was listed in the 1894 directory: Frankie Augusta Hurlburt and her daughters, Fannie, Edith and Julie. Frankie was the widow of Frederick B. Hurlburt, a printer in Oberlin (Holsworth). Frankie was a dressmaker and lived in this house with her children until about 1897 (City Directory). The next occupant of the house was Mrs. E. L. King in 1899. Around 1908, Frederick J. Lehmann and his wife Clara moved into the house. Frederick lived here longer than any other...

A carport is located next to the house, with a shed roof. The home is in excellent condition, and is located across the street from an elementary school.

rail lead up to the porch. The exterior has wood clapboard siding in the lower half and wood shingles in the upper half, which flares slightly at the side elevations. The front-facing gable has wide, overhanging eaves with a ribbon of four one-over-one windows in the gable. The front-gable addition stick up above the roof of the original house and has a circular window in the gable and knee brace at the center, below the eave. The south elevation has two one-over-one windows at the porch. The eaves of the porch are very wide and have exposed rafters. Three one-over-one windows are located to the far right of the first story. Lattice extends from the rear of the house, marking the deck. A large gable dormer is located in the roof, with three one-over-one windows. The north elevation has a pair of one-over-one windows near the center. To the right, three one-over-one windows have molded square panels directly above and three fixed windows above the squares. The eaves have exposed rafters. Two gable dormers are located in the roof, with two windows in each. The two-story, c. 1995 rear addition has vertical siding in its first story, rather than the horizontal siding in the original. A ribbon of five casement windows run the width of the addition, and are located in the middle. The eaves of the addition do not contain exposed rafters.
