42. Further Description of Important Interior and Exterior Features (Continued on Reverse if Necessary)
   This vernacular ranch has a side gable roof with a front facing cross gable at the center of the main facade. A door is located to the right of the cross gable and it is slightly recessed. It appears to be a new door, with decorative glass in the upper half. Two small, one-panel windows are located in the upper portion of the wall, right of the door. A one-over-one window is located to the left of the front gable. At the gable, one-over-one...
43. History and Significance (Continue on Reverse if necessary)
   This house was built between 1950-56, and is one of the older homes in this area (City Directories, Property Card). The first known residents were Ralph Earl & Helen I Bibler & their two children, who lived here from 1956 through 1961 (City Directories). Ralph was employed by Oberlin College, first as an instructor of Physical Education (1948-52), then as an assistant professor (1952-58), and as an associate professor (1958- at least 1960) (Alumni Register). After leaving Oberlin, Ralph taught continued...
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings (See #52)
   The house appears to be in good condition, and is located on the edge of a residential neighborhood. It is located at the corner of Pyle-South Amherst Road and Glenhurst Drive.

windows with shutters flank a fixed window. The south elevation contains a gable end with horizontal siding below. A single one-over-one window with shutters is located at the center of the elevation. The north elevation contains a two-car attached garage at the far left, with a door next to it, on the right. Further to the right, two one-over-one windows are located below the side gable, and another is located in the hall that connects the garage to the house. Windows at this elevation contain shutters. From the east elevation, a fixed window with two vertical panels and shutters is located on the garage. At the east and north elevations, the aluminum siding does not extend into the gables.

43. History and Significance (Con't)
at the University of Colorado at Boulder (Boulder Catalog). In 1970, Hans and Norma Stechow lived in the house (City Directories). Hans worked at Gilford Instrument Laboratories (City Directories). Thomas W. Annable bought the house in 1989 and owned it until 1996, when Mark and Elise M. Nester bought it.
