The lower half of this Craftsman/Arts and Crafts home is comprised of smooth stucco, and the upper half is wood shingles, which flare slightly above the first story. The main facade includes two front-facing gables. The gable on the right has a one-over-one window with shutters at the first story, and two one-over-one windows at the second story. The attic includes an eight-over-eight window. Large modillions run below the shingles of the second story continued...

This house was built between 1908-09 (Oberlin News, Blodgett 179). The first resident listed at this house was Kemper Fullerton in 1916 (City Directory). Kemper lived here with his wife Kate and two adopted children, Spencer and Katherine until the 1940s. Kemper was a graduate of Princeton University where he earned his masters in Hebrew around 1894. Fullerton then went on to teach at Lane Theological Seminary until 1904 when he arrived in Oberlin to head the Department of Old Testament Language continued...

The house is in excellent condition and is located among other homes that are well maintained.

story. The left gable includes oversized knee braces below the second story, and a small window with four lights in the attic. The door at the center is recessed from the two gables and has an arched window to its left and right. The entry has brick pilasters flanking it with a stone entablature above.

The door contains several lights; left of the door is a one-over-one window with shutters. A set of three windows with a window box and modillons is located above the window. A gabled dormer above the door has an eight-over-one window and exposed rafters. The remainder of the house also features exposed rafters. The chimneys are wide and prominent. The east elevation includes a carport that extends from it and contains a flat roof at the far right. The first story includes casement windows to the left and a small double hung window to the right. The second story features one-over-one windows to the left and right, with a smaller one near the center. The second story projects over the first with oversized modillons below the overhang, and a large gable dormer at this elevation has casement windows. The west elevation features a screened-in porch at the first story, near the center of the elevation. The porch has a hip roof and stucco columns with simple wood balusters and square lattice below. To the right of the porch is a one-over-one window. Above the porch, a small, square window is situated in the second story and one-over-one windows are to the left and right. A gablet in the roof has two windows with four lights in each.

43. History and Significance (Con’t)

and Literature at the Oberlin Theological Seminary. Kemper Fullerton held this position until 1934 (Archives). The next resident, in the 1940s, according to city directories was Charles Clifford Smith. Charles lived here with his wife Barbara, his mother Beatrice and his three sons: Chuck, Brian, and Brent. Charles was a WWII veteran, an embalmer at the Sedgeman Funeral Home, and owner and operator of Smith Furnishings and Floor Coverings (Oberlin News-Tribune). Charles passed away in 1974 and Barbara continued to live here until about 1990 when her son Brent purchased the home.
