This contemporary home exemplifies the ranch style. This single story home has a low-pitched gabled roof and a rectangular plan shape. A single door is lies center and flush on the front facade. An eight-over-eight double hung window is located symmetrically on each side of the door. Next to these windows are oriel windows that contain five strips of ten-light windows. A bracket is positioned in the center below each window. The front porch continued...

This neighborhood, the Shipherd Circle development (also known as College Park), was created to help meet the need for attractive housing to entice & retain quality faculty following WWII. The College was also eager to promote its new development as a racially integrated neighborhood. The college acquired a large tract of land on the eastern edge of the town south of East College Street, the acreage long known as Caskey farm, once owned by William Caskey, who taught oratory at the college from continued...

42. Further Description of Important Interior and Exterior Features (Con't)

extends the width of the house and is supported by four columns adorned in the stick style. A two-car garage is attached to the left side of the front facade. Vertical wood siding covers the front elevation. However, horizontal vinyl siding begins to wrap around the garage and the right side of the house. The north and south elevation are completely covered with the vinyl siding. The south elevation contains one, one-over-one double hung window in the center of the facade. A small vent is located above the window, underneath the roofline. Another one-over-one window is also located on the north elevation. The house appears to have a concrete foundation and contains a full basement according to the Lorain County Auditor's property card.

43. History and Significance (Con't)
